

700% Profits From the "Red Metal"

Each year, America consumes more than 8 billion pounds of copper. In fact, an American baby born today will use an average of 1,500 pounds of copper in his or her lifetime. And demand for copper continues to grow, both in the developing world and in the industrialized economies.

"Thanks for sending out all the e-mails. I look forward to receiving them along with your accurate view of what is really going on out there in the world of investments and politics."

-- Marshall K., California

First and foremost, copper is an excellent conductor of electricity and heat -- characteristics that make it invaluable in today's electronic age. And copper is an essential component of the growing Internet. Today, the vast majority of people use conventional telephone wiring to access the Internet. Consisting typically of two pairs of wires, conventional wiring is adequate for voice, fax and some data communications.

But a new type of structured wiring, using new cables, can result in faster transmission of increased amounts of information.

No Fake Numbers or Bubble Here: This Rising

Demand Is Market-Driven

Parks Associates of Dallas estimates that last year alone 12% of new homes were wired for the future. By 2004, Parks' mid-line forecast is for 42% of new homes to be wired properly.

According to the Copper Development Association, we are entering a time in which each house will contain an additional 20 pounds of copper. If you use a "conservative number of one million houses properly wired in a near-future year," the association says, "that results in a minimum of 20 million annual pounds of incremental copper consumption."

This is on top of the growing copper demand from emerging markets as more developing countries enter their own Industrial Revolutions. The rest of the world wants to catch up to the United States.

A Red-Hot Opportunity

Our favorite company has just about the most exciting copper prospects in the world. Its origins date back to 1919, when it was a small gold mine. Today, its British Columbia-based mine produces 282,300 ounces of gold and 73 million pounds of copper per year. And that total could soon grow.

Predictions are that a newly discovered deposit could hold 5.7 million ounces of gold and 2.2 billion pounds of copper. A deposit of that size would make any new mine at least twice as big as the company's existing site.

Busy Building Profits

The company has also bought other mines and formed new alliances with mines containing huge reserves. Right now the stock is selling for a fraction of its historical high. And with the bull market in copper going strong, it's very likely to hit and even surpass the old high.

Even just reaching the old high would produce a profit of 700%. And the returns could be much greater.

See our special report, Two $2 Resource Stocks That Will Take Off in Uncertain Times, for details on this superb company.

But for now, here's another solid opportunity -- another investment in the energy sector...

Demand Up, Supply Down: Possible 500% Profits With Natural Gas

Fifty-four million American households use natural gas service.

Plus, almost all of the new power plants being built today will run on natural gas, which is cleaner than coal or oil. Gas plants account for some 95% of the generating capacity under development. By 2009, half of all U.S. power plants will burn natural gas, up from 15% today.

Natural gas produces far less pollution than coal or even oil. That makes it both politically and environmentally popular as a source of energy. Already, it powers almost one-fourth of the nation's electricity supply. And the American Gas Association projects that natural gas usage in the United States could grow 45% by 2015.

Here's the Secret

The main force behind higher gas prices is also the secret behind profiting from any natural resource investment. I'm talking about the cyclical nature of hard assets.

Low prices lead to fewer producers. There's simply no incentive to produce when there's no profit to be made. And fewer producers leads to lower supply and lower reserves. And eventually -- as happened in California -- lower supply leads to higher prices.

It's a very simple process. And the key to profits is timing. You want to buy when there are few producers and prices are still low. Then, as prices rise, more producers step in to provide more natural gas.

Share prices of the natural gas producers have plenty of room to rise in this boom cycle. And now is the perfect time to buy -- before the news media pounces on the story and drives share prices higher.

Profiting From a Mega-Merger

Our favorite company is poised to benefit from not one but two bullish factors: the natural gas boom plus the company's recent mega-merger.

The company we are talking about began life as an underpublicized oil and gas giant founded in the early 1970s by the Canadian government. (In fact, at one point, only Canadian citizens were allowed to buy the stock.)

Supported by a sympathetic government, this once-small company grew into a colossus. Now that it has merged with another small but powerful company, expectations are that the next quarter century of growth will be even stronger than the first.

It is now the largest pure exploration and production company in North America, and the seventh-largest Canadian company overall. Its gas storage capacity is also the largest in North America.

Plus, It's Diversified...

The combined company's greatest strength comes from its diversification. Not only does the company drill for gas, but its businesses also include pipelines, natural gas storage and gas processing.

It's also working to cement its position in the United States. It already has natural gas storage facilities in California and Texas and is looking to either buy or lease another storage facility in the United States. And the company it merged with brought extensive mineral rights and other significant interests to the table, including a solid position on the East Coast, a large oil discovery in the North Sea and substantial operations in Mexico.

You can get my full trading recommendations on this deal in Two Oil & Gas Companies That Will Keep the Lights Burning ...just one of the FREE reports included in my investors' library of moneymaking guides.

(And as a bonus, you'll also learn about another great company, one of the world's most profitable oil operations, in this FREE report.)

And now, let me tell you about one last opportunity. One that could possibly be the best investment you make this year...

Turn $10,000 Into $80,000 in Less Than a Year With This Insider's Silver Option

Not only has gold entered a nice uptrend, but silver has also looked a lot better this year as well. It looks like the low of just over $4 an ounce in November 2001 was a major bottom.

"[I] made the cost of the subscription on my first buy, within a week or so. Your newsletter is a great deal!"

-- Al D., Texas

Plus, market insiders are signaling higher prices. Recent activity in the commodities trading pits hints that silver may be poised for a move to the upside. Commercial traders, who are considered to be the "smart money," have established their most bullish positioning in several months.

What do these insiders know? We think they "know" that silver is setting up for a significant rally.

You see, silver can be a better investment than gold. Besides being a much smaller market, silver, unlike gold, is relatively immune to central bank selling. So I believe it has greater potential for large price spikes. There's no artificial "force" to keep it down.

For example, take the central banks. It seems that every time gold starts showing real signs of life, some central bank or another makes an announcement of a huge sale. But central banks, by and large, don't own silver.

Plus, silver prices don't always follow gold. In some of the biggest bull markets of the past century, silver has actually led gold.

Once Again, It's as Simple as Supply and Demand...

Annual demand has outpaced new silver supply for over 12 years...in some cases by huge margins of 100 million ounces. Even with the recession, demand is outpacing new mine supplies by an incredible 175%.

Demand cannot keep outpacing supply indefinitely. The problem is nobody really knows the size of the aboveground supply, which includes not only silver bullion held by bullion banks, but also the bagged coins stuck in display cases, safety deposit boxes and sock drawers all over the world.

Much of this aboveground supply was left over from the early '80s run-up to $52 per ounce. But now this source of silver is disappearing.

Until recently, the aboveground supply made up the difference between new mine supply and demand. But it's running out. And most primary silver mines shut down when prices fell below $7 per ounce, because the cost of extraction was too high. Mines probably won't open unless prices climb to and hold above $7 per ounce.

And unlike gold, which basically remains intact forever, a good portion of silver is used up in industrial processes: it's embedded in obsolete circuit boards and other applications or tossed on the trash heap. For all intents and purposes, it disappears.

How to Reel in Huge Profits With This Option

The smartest way to play silver is to buy long-dated call options on silver bullion.

You see, with a long-dated call there is the potential of moving far higher, far faster than with bullion, coins or mining shares.

Right now, long-dated silver calls are relatively inexpensive. However, once silver starts to move, these option bargains are likely to disappear.

For example, with one of our recommendations you pay about $1,250 to control 5,000 ounces of silver for about 21 months. The payoff? These calls will be worth at least $5,000 for each dollar over the contract price. Should silver head to my target at $7, they would be worth at least $10,000

785% Profit From Pan American

When we first heard about Pan American, a small silver mining company, the stock was trading at about 35 cents a share. But we checked it out -- thoroughly -- before recommending it to our readers at $1.75. (We always believe it's better to be safe than sorry.)

Once we climbed aboard, the stock continued its steady rise. Then Fidelity suddenly bought 10% of the outstanding shares, and the price rocketed to $15.50. We got out and saw a 785% each.

In the worst-case scenario, you could lose your $1,250. But if silver rises at all, you'll be OK. And I fully expect it to go to $7 -- in which case these options cash out with a $10,000 payday. A spike over $7 and you're looking at windfall profits.

profit in less than four years -- which would have turned an initial investment of $10,000 into $88,751.

Make 5 To 10 Times Your Money in the Hottest Sector in the World

The biggest investment bonanza over the next two years will be in natural resources and real assets. Investors who understand the potential will collect fantastic profits -- if they know what markets are poised to blast off.

Unfortunately, most investors are afraid to take the plunge. The promise of technology still rekindles investors' hopes like a lost love. Wall Street's propaganda machine has told them that hard assets like oil and gold are dead. Even in the wake of the tech stock collapse, they yearn for the good old days when companies like AOL would make them rich. But they are just dreaming.

Make Steady, Large Profits -- Even in a Falling Stock Market...

In June 2000, we sent out a report warning investors about new tensions in the Middle East. We also told investors to prepare with stocks that are now up 20%, 63% and 116%...even 200% and more. That's just a small sample of the massive opportunities we've spotted ahead of the trend. Take a look at these...

- 75% on American Water Works
- 96% on EOG Resources
- 102% on Ashton Mining
- 125% on coffee
- 136% on RJ Reynolds
- 137% on KeyWest Energy
- 153% on gold
- 162% on Intrepid Minerals
- 209% on heating oil
- 224% on Niko Resources
- 304% on soybeans
- 332% on Glamis Gold
- 580% on Ace Development
- 668% on Metallica Resources
- 733% on Target Resources
- 785% on Pan American
- 1,009% on Enzo Biochem
- And 1,566% on S&P put options.

In fact, since December 2001, 80% of our closed positions have settled on the plus side...with average gains of 90%.

How do we make these profits, even as the stock market tumbles? With a firm grasp of the reality of the markets. By not believing that bull markets will go on forever, or that one sector will dominate the markets forever. And by understanding what's going on in the markets, and what's going on in the world, it's possible to predict where big profits are likely to be made -- especially from investing in the hard assets that are critical to the continuation and growth of human beings on this planet.

Paper investments are likely to be down and out for at least six more years. Hard assets, on the other hand, are poised for a windfall like that seen in the 1970s. Now, two decades later, the same telltale signs are flashing like jet lights on a darkened runway.

The New Bull Market Is Under Way

The bull market in commodities is off and running. And Outstanding Investments has been cashing in. Just in the past year, we raked in:

- 136% profits on RJ Reynolds
- 75% profits with American Water Works
- 57% profits on Waste Management
- 151% profits with Wheaton River Minerals
- 332% profits with Glamis Gold
- And 668% profits with Metallica Resources

But we don't just make money in bull markets. Even when commodities were in the dumpster, Outstanding Investments was seeing profits like:

- 241% on sugar
- 447% on the French franc
- And 733% on Target Resources

The big question now is, what stocks should you buy now?

Fortunately, Outstanding Investments does all the work for you. Right now you can get eight FREE reports telling you exactly what to buy to

FREE GIFT #1: THE OSLO SECRET: HOT PROFITS FROM A COLD PLACE

-- This is a great play on alternative sources to Middle East oil. Plus, its other businesses are hugely profitable (one is the most profitable of its kind in the world). Even if it were broken up and sold, shareholders would be ahead 30% to 50%. But besides being a great value as is, it's poised to skyrocket if there's a turnaround in the global economy or instability in Middle East oil supplies. Find out exactly how to play this hot pick in your FREE special report.

FREE GIFT #2: TWO $2 RESOURCE STOCKS THAT WILL TAKE OFF IN UNCERTAIN TIMES

-- While oil and gas are essential to the economy, there's a metal that's just as important. Fiber optics may get all the press, but copper is here to stay. In fact, demand for the red metal is about to go through the roof. And with demand on the rise, as well as copper prices, this junior resource company is ready to rake in the profits as it meets today's growing demand.

The other company I'll introduce you to in this FREE special report is a silver junior that is offering investors the opportunity to profit from the ongoing silver bull market. All told, it's sitting on 83.4 million ounces of silver and 2.3 million ounces of gold. This leader owns two of the largest operating silver mines in the United States, and in the first nine months of 2002 it produced a record 10 million ounces of silver, a 28% increase over the previous year. Right now is the ideal time to get in for maximum profit!

FREE GIFT #3: TWO OIL & GAS COMPANIES THAT WILL KEEP THE LIGHTS BURNING

-- In the political energy crisis we're facing today, oil and natural gas have become extremely valuable. The companies we introduce you to in this report will soon take off, and when they do, investors could get rich too! One is an international outfit that has increased production nearly 100% in five years, while its costs remain among the lowest in the industry. Its most recent find in North America could put the stock on the map. You'll need to get in before investors realize the bargain they're missing.

Meanwhile, Company No. 2 has seen its earnings shoot up. But the big news is the merger that made this the largest exploration and production company in North America. Today, few people have heard of it. But it could be one of Wall Street's most-owned stocks tomorrow.

FREE GIFT #4: THE ONLY 5 STOCKS YOU'LL NEED IN THE NEXT 5 YEARS

-- Not only has gold entered a nice uptrend, but its underappreciated cousin -- silver -- has also looked a lot better this year as well. Check out a way to invest in silver while receiving a nice dividend at the same time. Meanwhile, learn about one of the largest timberland companies in the United States that is literally a growth opportunity. You also need to know immediately about this company that has a lock on water markets in the U.S. Southwest (where summer droughts and shortages are regular events). And that's only three of the five hot opportunities we offer you in this FREE report. Before you do anything else with your money, be sure to read this report cover to cover!

FREE GIFT #5: MAKE 500% ON THE GREAT MONEY FLOOD -- With interest rates at all-time lows, trade deficits at all-time highs and the value of the U.S. dollar in free fall most of the time, it's only a matter of time before there is another major upturn in the yellow metal. Here's everything you need to know about gold-related investments so you can get in on the profit side of the Fed's great money flood. Whether you're interested in the safety of a gold fund, want to physically own gold or you're interested in the best gold mining stocks -- you'll find everything you need to know in this informative and authoritative report so you can earn profits to the tune of 100%, 200%...even 500%.

FREE GIFT #6: SECURITY & PROFITS: THE FIRST GREAT ENERGY INVESTMENT OF THE 21ST CENTURY -- The Athabasca Oil Sands near Alberta, Canada, hold more than 300 billion barrels of oil. That's more than Russia and the United States combined. It's over 10 times the deposits in Alaska, and more, even, than in all of Saudi Arabia! The catch: This precious oil is trapped in sand. But new technology has changed the equation. Extraction costs have started to plummet. And this super-rich oil sand deposit is about to make a few investors incredibly rich.

In this report, discover a company that virtually pioneered the oil sand extraction industry way back in 1967. Now it has 3,300 employees, over $6.8 billion in assets and a massive property right on the richest oil deposit in the Western Hemisphere. Company revenue is up 51%, and net earnings growth for 2002 hit 96%. Do not miss this stock. Find out more in this eye-opening FREE report!

FREE GIFT #7: TURN $10,000 INTO $80,000 IN LESS THAN A YEAR WITH THIS INSIDER'S SILVER OPTION -- To most investors, it's the "poor man's gold." But as you're about to read, silver could be a rags-to-riches story for the ages. While the Midas metal gets all the press, it's the white metal that's set for a historic move. Falling prices have set up a classic 'short squeeze' situation should silver start to climb -- as we are convinced it will. Investors who understand the opportunity could make a fortune.

FREE GIFT #8: A SECRET WORLD OF WEALTH-BUILDING: GROW RICH WITH NATURAL RESOURCES -- In this special report, you'll learn about the booming market that Wall Street is completely overlooking.
